All you need to know

Since 1 November 2015, all Children's and Adolescent Mental Health Services (CAMHS) across Southend, Essex and Thurrock are now called Emotional wellbeing and mental health service (EWMHS) for children and young people. They are being provided by NELFT NHS Foundation Trust.

NELFT is an experienced provider of mental health services for children and young people, already providing these services to children and young people in four London boroughs. It is also one of England's largest NHS Foundation Trusts. We provide community health services for children and young people with physical health needs in south west Essex and in the four London boroughs of Barking and Dagenham, Havering, Redbridge and Waltham Forest. You can find out more about NELFT by visiting www.nelft.nhs.uk

Our priority is providing the highest standard of care to all of our service users.

So who is the EWMHS for?

NELFT's EWMHS is for anybody aged between 0-18, living in the Southend, Essex and Thurrock areas and is free at the point of entry.

The service is also for young people with special educational needs (SEN) up to the age of 25.

Any young person experiencing emotional wellbeing or mental health problems, or any parent, guardian, professional or teacher of a child who is experiencing emotional wellbeing and mental health difficulties, may access our service.

Since 1 November 2015, we have been gradually rolling out these services:

- Preventative programs in schools, children's centres and other local places.
- Advice, training and support for other health and social services.
- A range of services including parenting and family groups, short psychological treatments and mindfulness in schools.
- More in-depth psychological treatments, which are evidence based and delivered by highly skilled practitioners in specialist teams.
- Help and support for all young people at times of crisis and if needed, a hospital admission.
- A gradual roll out of some online and digital services too.
